THE CASAVANT ORGAN

The Casavant Organ (opus 2670), dedicated in January 1963, was custom designed and built to meet the acoustical and musical requirements of Westminster Church. The organ is really two organs: a Chancel Organ located at the front of the Sanctuary, and a Gallery-Celestial Organ located in the balcony. Each has its own console. Together these organs have over 7,000 pipes arranged in 122 ranks. Every pipe, including those visible from the pews, is a speaking pipe.

Numerous additions and upgrades have taken place over the 50-year history of the organ. Lawrence Stofer is responsible for extensive renovations including new pipework and revoicing. During the summer of 2002, the R. A. Colby Company of Johnson City, Tennessee, custom built and installed a new console which includes state of the art technology with the Walker Technical System. In June 2007, several additions were made: a new Trompette Harmonique was added to the Solo Division, a gift of Joan Eicher and given in memory of her husband William Eicher; and the Celestial Division given in memory of Beatrice Jackson, organist at Clough United Methodist Church in Cincinnati for 65 years. This gift was given by her brother and sister in law, Ray and Sue Merz. In February 2010, a gift from the family and friends of John Bindeman was given for the installation of a Carillon in the Sanctuary. John (Jack) Bindeman, a longtime, dedicated member of the Westminster Choir, died during the summer of 2008. Through additional gifts given in memory of numerous individuals, the Carillon was configured to sound outdoors through an opening high in the northeast corner of the building.
